ActiveX controls dont work in on a Mac so you have to replace them with Form controls.. Excel 2011 Vba Full Office SoftwareMy primary goal was to have an Excel version on my MacBook Pro that allowed VBA macros, however the full Office software suite seemed to be a really great value.. I just typed in apple in cell A1 and brainiac in cell A1, then in cell A3 typing a letter a or b gives me the auto-complete functionality.. What happens is the VBA macro runs. The program loaded, I entered the product key, activated and registered the software, then launched Excel, and got a welcome screen telling me all about the new features.. Autocomplete is working on some of my Excel spreadsheets but not all I have trashed the preferences, the Excel toolbar, re-installed Office for Mac 2011 but I cant get it to work on some key spreadsheets.. Im not sure I want AutoComplete popping up after typing only 1 letter Going to the Developer tab and clicking Editor opened the VBA Editor, where I added a module and wrote a quick test macro, as you can see below.

I am not sure why anybody would want that, but thats beside the point. See solution in other versions of Excel: What is VBA? The Visual Basic editor displays your VBA environment in Excel 2011: VBA standards for Visual Basic for Applications and is the language embedded within your spreadsheet in Excel 2011.. How can one shortcut do two different things Maybe its smart and context sensitive.

Excel 2011 Vba Code That MayThere are some minor differences in the code that may cause an error, but generally the code should work..) If the drop-down menus in Excel 2010 are ActiveX controls, they wont work on a Mac in Excel 2011.. Currently I have to use the down arrow key to select it, then press return to go to the next cell and its slowing me down.. If you dont see the Developer tab, choose Excel Preferences and click Ribbon, then select the check box before Developer and click OK.. As you can see in the Description box below, this option converts the date system of the source data to match the date system of the target workbook.
